The Shakopee papers contain the proposals for building a bridge over the Min-neota river at the foot of Holmes street.
 It is estimated that the bridge will cost some $20,000. The road across the marsh will cost at least some $3,000.

Politics in this district are very quiet since the nominations of Poehler and Strait. Strait has gone to Washington and Poehler is taking it easy within the historic stamping grounds of old Joe Brown. We begin to think, that nothing short of a political earthquake will wake up the respective leaders of the two parties to a proper sense of their duties to the "dear people" of this district. What say you brother Russell?

The democratic congressional committee of the 3rd district are to meet in consultation in St. Paul shortly. The convention will probably be called in September. Hon. H. M. Rice is prominently mentioned as a probable candidate.
 Genl. Washburn is lying low and waiting for developments before going in on his "muscle." The bottom seems to have dropped out of Doc Stewart. But as is usual in that district, there will be a good deal of blowing and but little work done by either parties.

President Hayes and Governor Nichols, of Louisiana were the subject of the Potter committee investigation last week. A number of letters and telegrams were addressed before the committee which show conclusively that a "bargain and sale" was consummated by the immediate friends of both parties with the approval of their respective chiefs.

Republican Puff for Poehler.

 We have known Mr. P. for many years.
 He is an honorable, high-toned gentleman, very popular in the valley, and will give Maj. Strait a close fight. The Republicans must work early and late if they desire victory in that district.

The National Park Geysers.
 Helena (Montana) Herald.
 The Yellowstone geysers are the most remarkable in the world. There are more than 10,000 vents. The Grand Geyser throws a column of water six feet in diameter 200 feet high, while the stream ascends 1,000 feet. Its eruptions occur every twenty-hours, and continue twenty minutes. The Giantess throws a stream twenty feet in diameter, sixty feet high and through this five or six smaller jets 25 feet. It plays twenty minutes once in eleven hours. The Giant sends up a five-foot column 140 feet high for three hours. The Bee-Hive projects a column three feet in diameter to the enormous height of 219 feet for about fifteen minutes. Old faithful, very regularly for fifteen minutes once an hour, sends up its massive column six feet in diameter 100 to 150 feet high.

Redwood Falls and Sleepy Eye Railroad.
 Redwood Gazette, 25th.
 Tuesday afternoon Col. DeGraff and Superintendent Sanborn favored a large number of our citizens with a railroad ride to Sleepy Eye and back. The trip each way was accomplished in an hour, which is pretty good time for a newly constructed track, the distance being about twenty-six miles. Our people were more than delig-ent with the condition of the road. Knowing Col. DeGraff's reputation as a railroad builder, they of course expected good work, but they found a much better road bed than they had any thought of. The work and material are all No. 1. There was a feeling of unqualified satisfaction among those who made the trip over the road.

Destructive Hail Storm.

On Tuesday last this County was visited by one of the most violent storms of Rain and hail ever witnessed in this locality. The storm passed over the County travelling in an easterly direction and its course is marked by ruin and devastation. Reports have reached us from several localities, and all agree that the damage done to growing crops of all kinds was very great and in some instances the entire crop was destroyed.

Our reports at the present writing indicate that the storm first struck this county about one mile and a half northwest of Waconia village, and moved thence thro' Waconia, Laketown and Chanhassen, traversing a strip of country from one and one half to two miles in width and fifteen in length.

The destruction was not confined to growing crops but extended to fruit trees, shrub-berry, window glasses, poultry, and we are informed that even small pigs were killed outright.

It is impossible at this time to form any adequate idea as to the amount or extent of the injury done or what the ultimate effect will be upon the grain crops of the County, but sufficient is now known to warrant us in saying that what promised to be an exceedingly good yield now looks as though it would be far below the average.

The following parties have reported loses by Hail and are insured, the first ten in the St. Paul Company, and the remainder in the Milwaukee company.

The above is only a partial list of the insured and some of the heaviest losers are not insured as for instance Jerrie Ehemann and Mike Diethelm who each lose some 50 acres of grain. A rough estimate of the losses in the county foot up to something over

60,000 DOLLARS.

We are unable to particularize any further on account of being compelled to go to press.

Benton Items.

Friday last, the 26th of July, the ladies society of the Catholic congregation of Benton, celebrated their patroness' feast of St. Ann. Solemn High Mass was sung by Rev. Father Nealis of Jessenland Sibly County, assisted by Father Deustermann of Glenwood and Father Braun, of Benton.
 After the conclusion of this interesting ceremony, the funeral of Henry Smith took place, Rev. Father Braun officiating—and although harvesting had commenced, the members of the Benton congregation generally attended. The cortege moved from the priest house where he died, to the church, and a Requiem Mass was sung by his fatherly protector, Rev. G. H. Braun, for the repose of the deceased. Father Deustermann being deacon and Father
 Nealis sub-deacon.

Henry Smith came from Cairo Ill., for the benefit of his health, and was stopping with Father Braun and had been here six weeks.—During that time had made many friends, who sincerely mourn his untimely death. He died on Wednesday, the 24th day of July, of hemorrhage of the lungs in his 18 years of age.

His relatives were notified by dispatch of his death and arrived in Benton on Saturday, but could not take the body along and he was consequently buried in the Benton cemetery, far away from his home and loved ones. May he rest in peace!

Watertown Items.

School has closed.
 Where's Bemis etc.
 Harvesting yarms are in order.
 Carver County sports a Rifle and Hunting Club. Hadn't those young men better quit shooting ducks. If it is not atopped at once it will prove dear fun for them, and dont you forget it.
 Ern says there is not a man in the County, but can beat him binding grain. He ex-cepts Merriman.
 The school children held a pic-nic at the lake on the 27th, and we hear had a very enjoyable time.
 The fishing party on Sunday 28th, had lots of fun with the boys, besides getting lots of fish and rain.
 Where is that poetry? Where's the author?
 Where's the man who copied it? Where's the man who mailed it? Where is the lady and when will they meet again. Move on with your croque.

THE DEAD ALIVE. | gotten. Mrs. Bell's father died, and Mr.

In the town of Kilmaree, the north of Ireland, the families of the Bell and the Bellamy are well known. The head of one of these was a Mr. Bell, a young gentleman of twenty-five. He inherited a large estate from his uncle, and soon after removal from his uncle's house, he took possession of the family mansion in Kilmaree. He married the only child of a wealthy East Indian merchant residing in Liverpool, by whom he had two children, a son and a daughter. The second child Mrs. Bell was taken suddenly ill, and expired the next day. The excretions were of a peculiar nature, and the limbs so increased in size, that the mother was obliged to remove the diamond ring of great value could not be removed from the lady's finger, and was buried with her. Of course this fact was well known to the inhabitants of Kilmaree, and the doctor who attended the lady considered him thereabouts, and naturally, therefore, all concerning her was a matter of conversation.

Here the last sentence of the "last" was omitted, and the following facts were related. Crimes, and among the rest his exploits as a professional body snatcher, in which business he had engaged for many years past. The following facts are taken from a contemporary newspaper.

In July, 1820, he was living in Belfast, having fled from England to escape punishment for his offences. He had done several small jobs in Belfast for the doctors, and, on the night of the 10th inst., he was called to attend a patient. He was a very good man, and a well known physician of Belfast sent for him and told him that he had a very delicate piece of work for him to perform. A Mrs. Bell, a lady of great wealth, had been taken ill, and the doctor had just died of a peculiar disease, and the doctor and his associates desired that he should, to investigate the cause of death.

The doctor performed his duty, and the doctor's party dispatched him to Kilmaree, with such instructions as were necessary.

The day had been gloomy, and as night drew on a thin rain fell, which increased at about midnight to a smart shower. Mr. Bell, who was about retiring, went to an open window, and perceived a pale white figure crossing the lawn in front of the house. The next moment it disappeared, and satisfying himself that he was the subject of a delusion, he returned to bed. Suddenly the clear tones of the door-bell rang through the building. Mr. Bell paused and moved toward the door of the apartment to listen. As he opened the door, a woman entered through the house, and Mr. Bell stepped out into the corridor. At that moment, as he glanced down the stairway, he saw the hooded figure descending. He started, then he heard her set the small tin up she carried on the table and open the locks and bolts of the massive door.

stertorily bewildered and confounded, Mr. Bell hastened down stairs. The sight that met his gaze when he reached the center of the hall almost froze his blood, and he saw the three men, dressed in grave clothes, leaning against the pillar of the door, with one hand thrown across his breast. For a moment Mr. Bell was overcome. Then he remembered the white flag, which he saw waving in the air, and a few seconds before the bell rang, and another glance showed him that the garments of the figure before him were dripping with rain.

"Julia, my darling, my wife!" Mr. Bell exclaimed, and stepped toward the

But who was the woman who stood by the side of the coffin, when the corpse suddenly arose and started her into sudden flight?

Next day the lamp was found extinguished on the floor of the vault. It was identified as one which unusually stood in the vestry, and was used by the sexton. It had doubtless been removed at the same time when the key of the vault was taken. Beyond that all was

The check of the lady evidently blanched, and she gave a gasp for breath. Instantly recovering herself, she said: "Good! Good! You are, you air, you laboring under a mistake."

"Well I may be," the man replied, "that's a fact; but my impression is that I saw you last night in the vault when you were trying to remove the coffin from the finger of what you supposed be a corpse."

"You had sunk into a chair,"

days after Mrs. Bell's resurrection. The fellow was so taken with this remarkable circumstance a secret to the neighborhood; nevertheless, every exertion was used quickly to ascertain who was the cause of the leak. The general impression was that the garb of a female was assumed as a disguise, and the deplorable in reality a man, probably a professional burglar.

It was thought that the remarkable circumstance attending Mrs. Bell's supposed death had aroused the desire of some unscrupulous person to obtain possession of the body, and that the purpose of an autopsy; that he had employed a person to steal it, and that the body-stealer, discovering the valuable jewel he had resolved to gain possession of for himself.

"I know your secret, but I will let it if you will make it worth my while to do so," said the fellow. "How much do you require?" the asker asked, seeing the power he possessed a great effort.

"Twenty pounds down will satisfy me for the present," the man said, "and another twenty when the body is delivered."

The money was paid, and within a month the man returned and demanded more. The lady evidently revealed the story of her death.

"I will give you the money," he said, "soon after resigned his living and retired to England."

This part of the condemned man's confession was made known to Mr. Bell. The parties to this strange transaction

Grant on His Generals.

"By the way," said the general, "there is one point about the campaign in the wilderness worth remembering. My critics say that, had we not been so successful, our army would have starved to death. This has been repeated so often that it will soon be history. Now, my total losses were about 39,000, all told. Budeen's book will have the figures, but that does not mean killed, but the number of effective men taken from my army by death, wounds, capture and desertion. I lost 39,000 men, but do not forget what it cost Lee. Remember that Lee had to fight as much as I did, and he was on the defensive, which is always an advantage, and I had to attack and attack; but every blow I struck wounded him. Figure it up, if you wish, and you will find Richmond it was a far different army from that which invaded Washington and invaded Maryland, invading army." The wilderness campaign was necessary to the destruction of the Southern Confederacy.

[illegible][illegible]

"The disappointments" of the war.
 "There were a few men," he said, "who were not lucky enough to whom I had been in the army looked for success and rank—among them Rosecrans, Buckner, A. C. Gleason, Stone, McDowell, Buell. I felt that I was not going to be one of those commanders. Rosecrans was a great disappointment to us all—he was a very good man, but I was not going to be like him. I was going to be a soldier, and I think that great war was committed."

McDowell, at a school. I always regarded him as very good, a very able and a perfect loyal man, but a man who has had three or four times as much to do as I have. After the arrest of Stone and his treatment, military career in our war was destroyed. After that time, I never saw him again. He would have made his mark in the war. McDowell was a very good man. I should call all that luck. You will remember people called him a drunkard and a coward. Stone was a very good man in his life, and a more loyal man never lived have the greatest regard for McDowell's

"The trouble with many of our generals at the beginning," said the General, "was that they did not believe in the war. I mean that they did not have that complete assurance of success which belongs to good generals. They had views about slavery, protecting property, State rights—political views which interfered with their judgment. Now I do mean to say they were disloyal. A soldier has as good a right to his opinions as any other citizen, and these men were as loyal as any in the Union. But their opinions interfered, and many failures came from that. In some cases it was temperament. There is Warren, whose case may be regarded as a hard one. War-

A LITTLE BIOGRAPHY.

Albert Sidney Johnston might have risen in fame, and we could count on his doing so, had he not been killed at the Battle of Stones River. I think, too soon for us to say what he would have done under the later and altered conditions of the war, but I think he would have been a general. He, of course, was a good soldier, and so was Longstreet, but I do not know that he was a better general than Longstreet was. And nearly all of the Southern generals in command in front of me, and Johnston gave me the impression of being a better general than I was. I was never half so anxious about the war. By the way, I saw Johnston at the battle of Vicksburg. He was on his way to raise the siege of Vicksburg. I was in the trenches, and I saw him coming. I would have told Pemberton to wait in Vicksburg until I wanted to see him. I would have told him to wait until my battle. He could never have beaten that army, Johnston, and thus I would have decided the war. I was already gone. I was quite sure of Johnston's. I was sorry I did not know Johnston Johnston. I was sure of Johnston. I was sure of all the South, in my opinion, had no better soldier than Joe Johnston—none, at least, that

[Cincinnati Gazette.]

'The fact that "truth is stronger than fiction" is fully demonstrated by the presence of William Raines in our city. His life for the past nine years has been passed among the uncivilized negroes of the south-central portion of Africa, who had no language, cultivation, or any idea of time; who had never before seen a white man, and whose time was spent in the most brutal and savage manner. The history of his life is fraught with fully as much pathos as the hero of Tennyson's beautiful creation, "Enoch Arden." Raines worked at his trade, that of carpenter, until September, 1869, in St. Clairsville, in this State. Fortune had dealt kindly with him, and he blessed him with Raines was carried about 500 miles into the interior of the tribe that the war-party belonged to lived. The king of the tribe took a great fancy to him, and made good royal pet of him. He was allowed to go wherever he pleased, and to do as he pleased or check in any kind whatever. The tribe had no knowledge of the cultivation of the soil; their principal food was obtained from the river and was wheat, corn, herbs, and monkey flesh. The country they occupied was high and sandy in some places, but they never lived in the lowlands. Their rivers were muddy and scarce of fish. The natives had no knowledge of water craft of any kind. The language was a series of monosyllables, and the king of the tribe sounded with appropriate gestures could have a dozen different meanings. There was no sickness or malaria of any kind during his whole captivity. This he attributes to their manner of living. Their principal

He rose, through the lodge of which he had been passing, and told his name had been recorded on the death-list for six years.

But the saddest part of this story came now, after reaching the village of Upeviki, where he learned that his wife, Dipo, was awaiting his return, and believing that she was dead, after he had been gone three years without having returned.

His meeting with his wife, after her return, can better be imagined than depicted.

With a noble self-denial, which his people have never known, he refused to restore his claim to his wife and child who were still lives dearly, but has left to his wife the privilege of choosing between her husband and her children.

He has been positively identified by Mr. T. H. Anderson, of St. Clairsville, and is probably the same person as mentioned above.

While in Africa he several times heard from his uncle, who was a captain, and once one time a tribe from the north, and thought of returning home to see them.

the juice of a lemon and two teaspoonfuls of nutmeg.

All families are interested in their family physicians. They may take quack medicines for slight ailments, but when true sickness comes, then must come the family doctor. All are interested then in this matter, and every family newspaper should give them valuable information and advice.

Every one knows that, in times gone by, the great family doctors were educated in New York and Philadelphia, but that in these days such is no longer the case. The great cities of the West, Louisville, Chicago, Cincinnati, all contain medical colleges in which the very

In the Atlantic cities a student has to pay for two courses of lectures $155 each; or $310 for the two. His diploma fee is $30; all fees amounting to $340. His board for two sessions is $280, or $140 for each. His fees and board cost $340. These facts and figures are as follows: Chicago, etc., where the medical colleges are equally as good as they are in New York, the students pay for two courses $65 each, or $130 for the two. His diploma fee cost $30. All fees amounting to $160 for the two sessions. His board for two sessions cost $160, or $80 for each. The entire fees and board costing $320. These figures are also but there are other facts that are of even greater interest; facts which show that a student can not only save $300 in the cost of his medical education, but that he can gain one full additional course of lectures. That is to say, the student will, in seventeen months, obtain three instead of two courses of lectures, and save also $300.

Among the many new catalogues of medical colleges recently issued, that of the Louisville Medical College (Louisville, Ky.), is exceedingly interesting. Indeed, the facts presented therein are so important that we must present them to our readers.

From the fact of this Faculty teaching in these two great medical colleges, there is something so curious and interesting results.

Students who enter the Louisville Medical Institute in September or October, can, at the close of that session in February, at once enter the Kentucky School of Medicine, which commences its session in March and closes at the end of June. In the following September or October, these students can again enter the Louisville Medical college and graduate in February. Thus having in seventeen months for a time, A GREAT SAVING OF MONEY, AND THE GAINING OF ONE ENTIRE COURSE OF LECTURES. Indeed it is evident from the facts and figures afforded to the public in these catalogues, that in NO OTHER WAY, IN NO OTHER CITY, AND IN NO OTHER MEDICAL COLLEGE, CAN A STUDENT IN SEVENTEEN MONTHS OBTAIN THEIR FULL COURSES OF LECTURES AND YET SAVE IN MONEY FULLY $300.

Every student or guardian or parent who reaps these remarkable facts should send at once for catalogues. It is stated in the catalogues just issued, that all applications for them should be addressed simply to the

It seems only natural that so many students come from the Northern States should seek in winter the mild and temperate climate of Kentucky; for thus they escape their harsh winter weather, and return home in time for the cool Northern summer.

Louisville, the geographical center of the country, bids fair to be one of its greatest medical centers.

While newspapers seldom furnish the information which we have herein given, we are satisfied that our readers will value these articles.

The democrats carry North Carolina by an overwhelming majority. It was expected.

The "Greenbackers" in Indiana and Maine are making a vigorous fight and may revolutionize politics in those states.

THURMAN predicts a grand democratic victory in Ohio this fall. As he is a pretty good "philosopher" we are inclined to believe he is correct. Time will tell, however.

The commission for the re-organization of the army, of which Maj. Strait was a member, have adjourned to meet in the west some time the latter part of November. He will undoubtedly reach home this week and at once enter upon an active canvass of the district. There is much ahead for the bo-hoys.

Hon. John G. Matzold, is mentioned as a candidate for legislative honors, from the 3rd district, of this County. Mr. M. is an old citizen and has already creditably represented his district in the Legislature.

The County tickets this fall, will be made up as follows. County Auditor, Senator and three members of the House. Now is the time to commence laying your pins, to have them knocked down.

Hon. Henry Pochler has already commenced to canvass the district. We see by our exchanges that he has already visited McLeod and Brown counties, and was received very cordially by the citizens of those localities. He seems to take very well among the masses.

The Second District Democratic Committee. To the Editor of the Globe.

Red Wing, Minn., July 30, 1878.—In accordance with a resolution passed by the Second Congressional district convention, holden at Shakopee, July 18, 1875, I have this day appointed the following congressional committee:

Michael Ioran, LeSueur county, chairman.
W. T. Bonniwell, McLeod county.
J. P. Norris, Dakota county.
Henry Bolnke, Brown county.
J. M. Archibald, Rice county.

Yours truly,
J. C. PIERCE.

The Greenback party of Maine claim that they will poll not less than 40,000 votes, and some of the leading men are sanguine of electing the governor. In addition to this, they declare that they will secure two congressional districts, a third of the State senate, and elect county officers in Oxford, York, Arrostook, Somerset, and Piscataquis. It is said that Senator Blaine's remark, that this year the Republicans of Maine have to fight soft money not the Democracy, is literally true, though soft money and Democracy are synonymous terms in many localities.—PIONEER.

Waconia Items.
Strangers have been having heaps of "fun" here and on the lake the past two weeks.

Messrs. Meiding, Franken, Henk, Brenden, Keifer and Dutoit were in town during the week.

Our new wagon maker Mr. Jacob Radde purchased the house and three lots of Jno. G. Appel for $330.00, and now of course we will have a wedding. How soon Jacob?

Roadside pasturage is becoming scanty and cattle are now beginning to look covetously at the growing crops and hold enclosures in the fence corner to devise ways and means of getting a square meal of garden "sacs."

Plenty of rain and thunder storms in this section of the universe.

Mike Zahler had as fine a set of ~~working~~ harvest hands as we ever saw last week. They were there to bind Mikes grain after the reaper, but somehow or other the beer was too handy, and they put in their time over the beer keg. They would the entertainment up by a grand wrestle between Mr. N. and Mr. B. It is unnecessary to say the plucky little Mr. B. won.

Harvest progressing slowly, with much damaged grain.

NORWOOD DEPARTMENT

Mr. James Stocum is having his grain elevator thoroughly overhauled and repaired and storing capacity increased preparatory to the fall trade. He will be enabled to handle his share of the crop with neatness and dispatch.

We noticed that Dr. Cash was limping about town on Saturday and on interviewing him found he had been kicked by one of his horses. We would not give much for Doc's good will toward that animal.

Where, Oh! where are the Politicians! Dr. Miles will probably return from the east the present week and will be welcomed by his many friends.

There will be a new lodge of "Sons of Hermann" organized in Norwood on Sunday the 18th inst., a large delegation of the fraternity will be present from St. Paul, Minneapolis and Stillwater. An interesting time is expected.

Norwood has imported more than 10,000 lbs. of ice this summer.

Mr. Geo. Mix was parading our streets with a "bummers" splendid turnout, he carried an elegant line of samples.

We notice that the Norwood correspondents of the Carver Free Press and the Glencoe Register are quarrelling like a couple of "Kilkenny cats." The principal bone of contention in the present instance being as to which stand best in the favor of a certain "MEADOW LARK." From the way in which the Glencoe correspondent sneaks it looks as if he was conscious of losing ground.

This may all be very interesting to the parties concerned, but we suggest to them that the "Press" is not the place for them to air their "dirty linen", and the PUBLIC are not concerned in their little rivalries, and are becoming disgusted with the subject; neither does it look well for two prominent church members and leading business men of the town to be making public exhibition of their enmity toward each other. "Let us have Peace."

On Thursday night Aug. 1st a disastrous fire occurred in which Fritz Drews house was completely destroyed. The origin of the fire is unknown. The building was fully insured in the Phoenix of Brooklyn. The heaviest loser by the fire is Mr. Klostermann whose household goods and furniture were stored in the building and were not insured. His loss will probably reach $500.00.

Young America Items.

A new roof was put on Mankenberg Hotel last week.

He. Heimkes dwelling house is finished, and he has moved into it with his family.

The German Lutheran church has received a coat of paint, and now looks as clean as a new laid egg.

Mr. H. Thomas has put up the first stack of grain this harvest, around this neighborhood, the fact is he commenced his harvest in the right time.

The members of the Pioneer Maennerchor went down to Carver last Thursday to attend to the funeral of Mrs. Jacob Honner.

If you want a cool drink and clean glasses, go to Mankenberg saloon and you will find everything in shape.

Mr. Richard Heltriegel was with us over Sunday. Call again Richard.

If any person is in doubt about grapes growing in this part of the country, go to Julius Ackermann and he will take you into his vineyard and at once convince you that something can be done in that direction by proper care.

Those boys who are inclined to sneak into the orchards of other people, better look a little out.

A foot race went off in good shape, and all that could be seen of the running parties was a confused mass of hair on top of a million of heads. Go it.

Helvetia Items.

Harvesting is progressing nicely. A good share of the wheat will be in stacks this week. It is not as good however, as last year. The yield is light and will probably grade No. 2.

R. Zeglin, has purchased an interest in a Steam Thresher and will turn "granger." Come out Mr. Editor and try your hand at threshing. It will do you good.

Our Village is improving. We were serenaded last week by a new singing club, so you see we are going ahead.

As soon as harvest is over I will send you another batch of items of more importance.

Gen. G. K. Warren.

Reply of Gen. G. K. Warren to the Criticisms of Gen. Grant.

Gen. G. K. Warren, of the United States engineer corps, who was a prominent witness in Gen. Fitz John Porter's investigation recently, in commenting on the use made of his name by General Grant to a special correspondent of the New York Herald, in a note dated the 25th inst. says:

Being one of the characters described in the letter printed yesterday from a special correspondent at Hamburg purporting to be made up of "odds and ends of conversa## tion in idle moments" of Gen. Grant, I hereby protest against its being used by "the historian" for whom it is claimed it is written. Even Gen. Grant's friends must see that it is derogatory to his character to talk thus loosely about other men concerning matters upon which he has had the opportunity to be thoroughly informed. If I could believe that Gen. Grant would acknowledge as his own the charges made against me about the "mine explosion" at Petersburg I would refute them at length. But it is enough now to say that there was a court of inquiry, of which Major General Hancock was president, immediately after that event, and the finding of that court charged no part of that "disaster" to me.

At the battle of Five Forks I was not relieved till after the battle had ceased. Thousands of soldiers in the Fifth army corps and many in the ranks of our foes can testify that I led the final attack that completed that victory. There was no cause to take me away for any misconduct and Gen. Grant would never allow me a court of inquiry, because thereby I could have shown there was no cause. I claim the honors of that day are mine.

The portrait the correspondent gives us of Gen. Grant in his idle moments, repeating a caution to be spread broadcast over the world against one whom he is made to say "is a good soldier and a good man trained in the art of war," whose command was all the vantage ground in the siege of Petersburg from the place of the mine explosion to Five Forks—the portrait, I say, is not that of the magnanimous man we would have our children believe him.

Respectfully,
G. K. WARREN.

CURRENT TOPICS.

Lloyd Garrison "condemned" predicts that women will vote within the next decade, and Wendell Phillips says that, "if we gain in the coming fifteen years half as much as we have in the last thirty, women will hold spear and shield in their own hands."

Miss Georgie Clifford, of Tilton, N. H., a student at the Methodist Conference Seminary, recently loaded six racks of hay with the thermometer oscillating around 100. A miss who can load hay in that manner, "with a thermometer," ought to be a success in handling a fork.

The influence of a tender, jaded, intelligent woman, seldom, if ever, departs from her well trained child, either in youth, manhood or old age. The habit of judiciously formed in childhood by her fostering care, go down to the utmost verge of human life, however prolonged.

If there is no law for their protection it is not time for the farmers to take the law into their own hands, and for their own protection administer such effective punishment to tramps who are burning their barns and stacks, and poisoning their cattle, that when once chastised they won't do so any more.

Since the adjournment of the Berlin Congress, the Russians are displaying unwonted activity in Central Asia. The railway from Orenburg is pushed eastward as fast as possible, and troops are advancing into Bokhara and towards the frontiers of British India.

The gas which escapes from coal in mines mixes very slowly with the atmospheric air unless the latter is agitated, and the gas has a decided tendency to arrange itself in distinct zones. Air in a mine may thus be quite safe in the very neighborhood of a dangerous locality, and an explosion may occur without any warning.

Mosby, the ex-guerrilla, is described as a quiet-looking, medium-sized man of pleasing manners, with clean shaven features, good-sized nose, blue eyes, a resolute mouth and short gray hair. He is very reserved in speaking of his own exploits, but smiles grimly when reminded of some of his surprising captures of Yankee officers.

In this season of camp-meetings, thousands thronged to the religious convocations. Recently, at Ocean Grove, New Jersey, 10,000 people crowded the religious exercises, and when the great congregation joined in singing "Rock of Ages," it was the voice of many waters resounding through the great open-air auditorium.

Grant's friend Childs, of the Philadelphia Ledger, says that the General has given him to understand that he does not desire to be President again, because he is tired of public life and desires to settle down again into the seclusion of private citizenship, and Childs thinks that if the politicians try to nominate him he will give them notice that they must seek somebody else.

The celebrated and eccentric John Randolph, of Louisiana, said, in his many years, but for the remembrance of the fact, when he was a child, that his mother clasped his little hands in hers, and taught him to repeat: "Our Father who art in Heaven, etc." he should have been a French infidel. Thus the influence of a mother often goes down through the years of manhood, to beautify and adorn his private character.

The Smith sisters of Glastonbury, Connecticut, will be remembered by newspaper readers. They were lonely old maids, one aged eighty-two, and the other eighty-six. They have always refused to pay taxes without they were granted the right of suffrage, and each year, for many years, have litigated with their native State, but without success. Some friend would invariably step in and pay their taxes for them, and save their property. On the 24th ult., Abigail, the youngest sister, died.

Montellier Utz, at one time, perhaps as wealthy a man as lived in Page county, Va., was, on last Tuesday, taken to the county poorhouse as a pauper. He was taken thither by Edward Stroll, of Shenandoah Iron Works district, who bought for him at a store in town a suit of clothes on his way there, as those he was wearing were insufficient to hide his nakedness. Before the war he owned 1,500 acres of land and forty three slaves, besides much other valuable property. His property was lost through mismanagement. He has in this country no relatives that we knew of.

In spite of Gladstone's querulous animosity, Lord Beaconsfield is the hero of the hour, the central figure of British statesmanship. He retires from his successful peace negotiations like a conquering hero. The people throng to meet him. His path is strewn with roses, and the highest civil honors are bestowed upon him, and his gracious Sovereign, not to be outdone by her grateful, applauding subjects, graciously constitutes him Knight of the Garter, the highest honor that can be bestowed upon a Peer of the realm. In the midst of all this, the evasive ex-Premier, Gladstone, vexes the air with his vindictive diatribes against the dismemberment of Turkey, and the hard fate of poor little Greece. His criticisms are drowned by the popular adulation. The viper gnaws a file, to his own manifest personal harm.

Bannock John, an old Indian desperado, was killed by two or more Indians the other day, belonging to Sempai agency, Idaho. Bannock John had murdered a white man but a few days before his own taking off. He was thought to be a follower of Indians in self protection, so desperate in character had become.

Gen. Clarke of Springfield, O'wego county, N. Y., is a large landholder and has numerous tenants. Barns and property to the amount of $40,000 were destroyed by fire, by his tenants, the gang being led by one of his tenants, Charles Montague. He had a disagreement with his tenants on account of rents. Montague the chief of the gang is in jail.

A Burlington, Iowa special says, Thursday forenoon two tramps stopped at a farmer's house near Trenton, Henry county, Iowa, on the 1st inst., and after getting a good dinner from the farmer's wife and learning that her husband would not be at home till evening, suddenly seized her, outraged her person and left her insensible. They had stayed the cries of the farmer's little daughter by rolling her up tightly in a blanket. When unbound the child was nearly suffocated, and died in an hour. The neighbors are scouring the country for the fence cutters, but at last accounts had not found them.

AN EXTRAORDINARY PREACHER.

[Boston Herald.]

Norwood, Mass., July 18.—During the past few days, candid statements have been circulated quite generally in Northboro and several of the surrounding towns reflecting on the character of Rev. E. A. Goddard, the resident pastor of the Baptist church here, who has been preaching here some over a year, the statements in question charging him directly with an indecent exposure of his person before several ladies, both married and single, and also with throwing kisses at young ladies when on the street, all these acts occurring in the day-time. Hearing these stories, a Herald representative hastened to

The State Fair promises to be a huge affair this season. President Hayes, is to be one of the attractions of the exposition.

We would respectfully inform the LaSalle Corners, that we have taken our stand on the Congressional question; and by referring to the files of the Herald will see that they are emphatic enough to plainly indicate our preferences—not only that, but we generally "run" our own concern and do not ask or receive outside advice.

Senator Thurman has opened the campaign in Ohio by an able speech, mostly devoted to the financial question. It is now stated that Secretary Sherman, of Hayes' Cabinet, will take the stump in Ohio and reply particularly to Senator Thurman. They are both able men, but Thurman has the right side of the question.

The State Fair and the Agricultural and Mechanical Association, of Minneapolis, open up on the same day, Sept. 2nd and throughout the week. They will be worth seeing and we advise our citizens to attend, if possible.

The St. Paul Globe says: The magnificent Dr. Bartlett is very indignant because the Senate Committee want to know about his figures and the expenses of the insane asylum. Dr. Bartlett has been automatically expending over a hundred thousand dollars per year of State money for so long a period that he evidently thinks he owns the State. Perhaps it would be a good plan to give him a dose of his own medicine and let Dets feed him hot soup with a plug.

OUR ROAD LAW UNCONSTITUTIONAL.

Judge McDonald has just disposed of a case being pending in McLeod county, in which he decides that so much of our road law as attempts to confer jurisdiction upon Justices of the Peace to hear, try and determine appeals from the decision of town boards of supervisors, in laying out, or refusing to lay out, public highways, unconstitutional and void.

He holds that the appropriation of the land for a highway, involves the title to the land taken for a highway; and that an appeal to a Justice of the Peace, from such decision of the supervisors, is a "cause in favor of title to real estate;" and that by Sec. 6 of Art. 8 of our constitution, justices of the peace are prohibited from trying such cases. The decision is of interest and will probably be published.

We copy the above article from the Shakopee Courier.

The Great Northwestern Exposition.

The preparations going on at the Minneapolis Fair Grounds for the reception of stock, machinery and other exhibits, are of a magnitude that indicates "the greatest exhibition held in the northwest" and from the immense correspondence conducted by the Secretary and his able assistants, it would seem that "all the world" were coming to Minneapolis. Stalls for stock have already been secured to parties from nearly every State west.

Mr. T. L. Miller, of Illinois, the great Hereford breeder whose herd carried off the sweepstakes at the Centennial, requiring (10) forty stalls, alone for his herd. Car loads of fine sheep and swine from Canada. Short-horns, Jerseys, Ayreshires from all the States are coming to this great fair. In Horses lovers and admirers of this noble animal will have their anticipations more than satisfied by the grand display of all classes, from the roanest roadster to the choicest draft specimen in America. E. Dillon & Co., of Normal, Ill., the greatest importers of the famous Norman-Percherons in America, will have (5) five car loads of their famous horses on the grounds.

Prof. L. B. Arnold, of New York, Secretary of the American Dairyman's Association, will be present to meet, consult and advise with our dairymen. It does not need any words of ours to assure the promise of what everybody always expects at Minneapolis fairs.

A grand success, no frauds, no failures to pay premiums, and no impositions by the citizens "proverbial for their hospitality," upon the multitudes that are always made welcome and sent home happy.

NUMBER 47

NORWOOD DEPARTMENT

Dr. Miles returned from his eastern visit on Thursday last and was welcomed by his many friends in a way that must have done him good. He says he is surprised to find the people so distressingly healthy.

A. Mr. Gill and family of Iowa and a sister of Mr. Slocum are visiting the latter, we welcome them to our town.

Mr. Mix will have his elevator repaired this week and put in good shape for handling all kinds of grain.

Pats wife gave him quite a little surprise on Saturday night—for particulars inquire of Pat.

Montgomery Berfield was the first to start the threshing business for this harvest; he reports his yield at 25 bushels per acre in standing grain and 18 bushels in the lodged portions.

It is rumored that our druggist is to take a partner in his business this fall.

Dr. Cash has gone to Carver to attend to the business while Lewis is slaughtering chickens and things.

The news of Young Truws tragic death caused quite a sensation in our village.

His remains were brought home on Thursday P. M. train and was interred on Sunday morning. His parents are grief stricken with this calamity. They have the sympathies of the whole community.

Mr. Gill visiting with Mr. Slocum received telegraphic intelligence on Thursday that his father in Iowa was robbed of five thousand dollars. No particulars.

Excursion tickets will be sold at half rates during fair week both to Minneapolis and St. Paul. There will probably not be another such opportunity to see and be seen in the next decade as the fairs at St. Paul and Minneapolis will present.

Watertown Items.

We or the devil (don't say both) were mistaken last week, Dr. Lau Bachis comfortably settled at the Union Hotel, not Zeyers.

The German American Hail Ins. Co. of St. Paul sustained a number of losses near this place and have in every instance promptly and satisfactorily settled. Farmers remember the name, G. A. etc.

C. M. Hoyland near this place threshed 100 bushels more wheat (on the same ground) this year than he did last. Wheat is turning out much better than we dared to expect. The grade is No. 2.

We were pleased to shake ye editors friendly hand on Saturday. Same old shake. May you live to bury your third wife is the worst wish we have for you Fred. Now don't get scared we never did have any luck at wishing.

Most of our young people were up to Glenoe Saturday on a jollification trip, and speak in glowing terms of Glenoe and its hospitality. A delegation from Glenoe will trip "fantastic brogans" at this place next Saturday, and every effort will be put forth to make the occasion an enjoyable one.

During the trial of Souerbreit for disorderly conduct the following questions "personally" were asked a witness. Mr. K—did you ever see the defendants Att'y. drunk? Ans. Yes. By deffs. Att'y., Mr. K—did you ever see plaintiffs att'y. intoxicated? Ans. Why, Yes. This we term needless waste of time. Whole families would swear to these questions.

Dr. Lau Bach is quite busy occasionally filing protests to cholera morbus. There has been no fatal results, but quite a number looking foolish.

The city council should post up notices stating what it costs to break the various ordinances. It cost Souerbreit $18.75 for disorderly conduct, when if he had broken the ordinance relating to cattle running at large he would have got off with $5.00. You pay your money and takes your choice. $16.75 extra for a genuine article.

Two lady tramps are the latest. They walk from house to house requesting contributions such as bread, butter &c. We always thought there were WOMEN at the bottom of this "tramp" business. But then if these ladies are a sample of lady tramps, don't know as we blame the boys much.

Boys will be boys—

Among the prominent gents in town the past week were Messrs. M. B. McMillan [son of Senator], Att'y. O'Dell, Mr. Kiefer, St. Paul, Rev. F. Iena, St. Cloud, W. A. Nimocks, Minneapolis.

Young America Items.

Last Friday the remains of H. Truwe were removed from Minneapolis to Young America. A large number of people old and young went over to the depot in the evening to await the arrival of the train upon which the corpse were escorted into our village, and placed in the P. M. Hall. The next morning the hall was decked in mourning, and the ladies covered the handsome coffin with wreaths and flowers. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon the Pioneer Mannerchor gathered around the coffin and sung one of their beautiful burial songs, after which Mr. Fritz Schuets of Carver delivered a most remarkable oration on the occasion. The coffin was then opened for the last time and every one hastened to take a last look at the deceased.

H. Truwe was a young man of 18 years of age, good hearted, kind, polite to every one, active in his work, well educated, and beloved by all who knew him. His parents have the sympathy of the whole community.

TO SCHOOL OFFICERS.

The annual school meetings for the year 1878 will be held on Saturday, Sept. 7, and the clerk of each district is required to post notices thereof in three conspicuous places, at least ten days before time of meeting. In case notices are not so posted a meeting may be held to transact ordinary business, and it will be legal. If a district expects to levy a tax for building purposes, or to designate or arrange for a schoolhouse site, the fact must be distinctly stated in the notice for the meeting.

If less than five voters should be present the meeting should adjourn to some future day and an effort be made to secure the required attendance. If five or more are present the meeting should be opened by the clerk or some other person, and the required business transacted.

The voters present should insist on the clerk's reading the annual report of the teachers on the condition of the schools, for which blanks are provided in Clerk's Record Book, pages 47 to 53. They should also see that the treasurer's report has been made as the law requires and that the clerk has made his annual report to the county Superintendent.

District clerks should examine the financial statements received from the county Auditor, and see that the several items of payments are classified as follows:

Received from school fund, liquor licenses and fines.

Received from one mill tax.

Received from bonds sold.

Received from all other sources.

If not classified as above it will be almost impossible for them to make a financial statement to the county Superintendent as the law requires.

The above is taken from the Carver Free Press.

Waconia Items.

Mrs. G. Boetsche presented her husband with a 12 pound boy. He is happy over the event.

Judge A. K. Maynard of St. Paul is stopping at the Lake House.

Sheriff DuToit, W. C. Odell and Phillip Henk, of Chaska, were in town during the week.

Threshing will commence this week. Work has been resumed on the mill foundation.

CURRENT TOPICS.

Miss Mary Mosby, daughter of the Confederate General, was crowned queen by the triumphal knight at the recent tournament at Orkney Springs, Va. Miss Mosby is described as a blonde, graceful and sylph-like.

The carbonate territory in the region south of Pike's Peak, over the Arkansas River, is lengthening out. Some of the thoroughly-worked mines are turning out rich beyond calculation, the ore proving a thick chloride. Excellent hard carbonates and high grade chloride ores are brought to light every day. There are crowds of people in the region yet it is hard to get the right kind of man to work for good wages.

Some students of the Columbus Medical College were lately caught raising to the fourth floor a body just stolen from a graveyard. The earth-auger, hoes, ropes and other implements used in despoiling the tomb were captured with them. Their whispering was so loud that it attracted the attention of a patrolman, who, by some accident, was not asleep in an alleyway. He called for assistance, and the whole party were arrested. Next morning the college professors furnished the students' bail.

The tramps in Wooster, Ohio, have met with a just retribution. Nineteen of them entered the town a few days ago and were promptly offered work at good wages by the farmers. They of course contemptuously refused, and now the city of Wooster have risen in their wrath and declare that each and every tramp who turns up shall be ornamented with a chain and set to work on the streets. This remedy has proven very effective in Massillon, where it has been in vogue for some time.

The Empress of Austria is now a granddama, and yet no one could with justice give her more than thirty or thirty-two years at the outside. Her waist is still as round and small as when she was a young princess, and not, as now, her majesty. Sometimes her face wears a most lovely color, and after galloping up and down two or three times the long avenue of the Prater, she looks younger and prettier than ever. She leads a strange life for an Empress, and avoids society as much as possible.

The newspapers of New York city are announcing positively that the merchants of the metropolis are looking forward to the fall trade with greater confidence than for a long time. As they have gauged their expectations on a reasonable standard, they are able to say that they will be able to meet the proper steps that direction. They are for the revival and bustle of the ago and previous, but for improved and healthy buoyancy and a more general activity. Speedy the good time.

American girls are adopting the sensible fashions of English girls at watering places. They no longer wear long trailing morning dresses, which are too delicate for anything but piazza promenades. They don the short cheviot suits, or flannel serge yachting suits, and are ready for archery, tennis, croquet, or a mountain walk. By the seashore, when storm signals are out, they have a Tweed skirt, a Tweed derby, thick boots and a short dress, and defy the weather. Simplicity in dress is considered a mark of good taste.

The heavy toll of human life which England is already beginning to pay for her possession of Cyprus can surprise no one who has seen what the Greek cities of the Levant really are. The grim old proverb, that "the plague lives in Smyrna all the year round," aptly describes these hotbeds of filth and pestilence; and, Nikosia, situated on low ground at the foot of a steep mountain ridge that completely shuts out the health-giving winds of the North, is the worst conceivable place for men to live in, cool, breezy England. The "Eastern Janissaries" do not rival its miasmatic destruction of life, the precautions already adopted in the latter place must be employed at once.

Col. Forney, writing from Paris, characterizes the continental railroads as deplorable and almost hopeless, arising from the immense cost of their construction, and as being established in old countries which have reached their growth. This suggests one great advantage American roads have for recuperation. Our country is new, and in the West and South especially there is almost a perpetual and indefinite margin for improvement. The drain is from the old to the new, and what tends to impoverish the former adds strength to the latter. These facts will account for the vast amounts of foreign capital that have been invested in our railroads, which at the time have been hugely in debt, and with no immediate prospect of dividends.

Captain Bogardus has scored another triumph by vanquishing Mr. Aubrey Coventry, who is beyond question the most brilliant and steady wingshot in England. The American champion was evidently snarling; under the wrong which had been done him a few weeks previously, when he was forced into a match under conditions that rendered his defeat a moral certainty. Accordingly, he husbanded his energies for the decisive contest, and had an ample revenge on the British sports who backed his rival at odds of 100 to 80. An immense amount of money changed hands on the result, and our Yankee brethren in London who patriotically planked their cash upon Bogardus are naturally elated at the success of their favorite and fellow-countryman.

in its stead—among others, a peculiar conference of the kind fixed into a leather band—most of them have been found in the hands of the police. Nature here asserts her superiority to science. The band produced only about one hundred specimens needed for the cloth manufacture, the others being imported from the continent. These foreign textiles are said by the manufacturers to be by far the best.

THE PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION.
MONDAY, August 12.—The Potter committee resumed its session, but all the members were not present, no witnesses were examined. Stanley Matthews had been examined but it failed to appear. Gen. Butler testified that if Matthews was examined that he would not be asked or give the answers of the House of Representatives, the sooner the issue was made the better for the House and Senate. He therefore moved that it be entered on the record that Matthews refused to appear before the committee and that the same be reported to the House for their action in the matter. Mr. Potter responded that he would himself make the statement and that he would report to the House for their action in the matter. The committee then went into executive session.

Here and There.

The weather is good.
Harvesting is over and threshing commenced.

There is not an idle man in town. A fact that speaks well for our city.

Our different brick manufacturers are turning out brick in large quantities, the better being quite favorable for their business.

Messrs. Enger & Hanson, are pushing Krayenbuhl's new house forward to completion at a rapid pace. It will be a nest dwelling.

The steamboat excursion last Sunday to St. Paul, wasn't much of a success. 120 persons formed the party. The best stock on the Mendota bar and the parties returned by rail.

Sunday trips in the country for pleasure, are now all the "go" in our village.

Henk will finish off the upper story of his brick store this month and when fully completed will move into the same with his family. He will run a porch along the entire length of the building on the west side. Kenning is doing the carpenter work and Grates the plastering.

A neat new picket fence is being built around the new M. E. German Church, which adds still greater attraction to that beautiful building.

Leonard Grates has commenced plastering the upper story of Messrs. Hammer & Beierstette's store, which evidently means that one of the boys—perhaps both—intend to get married soon. Eh! boys!!

HO! THERE TWINS.
Our young friend Theodore Worm, of Chanhassen, was presented by his wife on Thursday Aug. 15th 1878, with twins and the best part of the transaction is, that they were both boys. Well, Theodore you have our hearty congratulations, but do think you had better "look a leetle out," after this.

HOLIDAY.
Last Thursday was a Holiday with our Catholic friends. Services were held twice during the day in our church and the town was crowded with people. We understand that the services were of an interesting character.

Abercrombie, and that they have taken up their residence in Marshall, Minn. Mrs. Smith's many friends in this village wish her much joy and happiness.

BUTCHER SHOP.—The new butcher shop building of Messrs. Riebe and Ohland is completed and is a beauty. Adolf Schultze was the builder. The butcher shop is in full blast now with John Ehrmantrant as "boss" salesman.

STORE BUILDING AT PLATO.
Messrs. Enger and Hanson have taken the contract to build a large frame store at Plato, the new town between Norwood and Glencoe for Enoch Holmes Esq., of Carver. They have already commenced work. Mr. Nobles has the contract for the foundation and plastering. These gentlemen being skilled mechanics is a guarantee of a good job all around.

During State Fair week Sept. 24 to 7th tickets will be sold to St. Paul and return at the remarkable low price of $1.25 at H. & D. Depot Via St. P. & S. C. Ry.

Death of J. Henry Trawe.

THE RESULT OF AN ACCIDENT.

The startling report reached our village through the St. Paul dailies of Friday morning, the 16th inst., that Henry Trawe, son of John Trawe, of Young America, had committed suicide in Minneapolis on the previous evening, by shooting himself through the breast with a pistol, and that his death followed during the same night. We copy the following biographical notice regarding Henry from the St. Paul Globe of Saturday.

"His name was John Henry Trawe, and he was the oldest son of John Trawe, a member of the firm of J. Ackermann & Co., of Young America, Carver County. The father is well known to the business men of St. Paul and Minneapolis, having served the county of Carver in the legislature for one or two terms, and having for twenty years been a merchant in good standing in Young America.

The young man was aged about 19 years. He was formerly employed in Glencoe, but two months ago came to Minneapolis and entered a law office as a copyist. He was unusually bright and well informed for one of his age, and a universal favorite wherever he went.

It is now generally believed to have been the result of an accident, and not a case of suicide, as he was a young gentleman of especially good habits and was well supplied with means at the time of his death. His father is quite wealthy and could have been called upon in case of financial straits.

The remains were taken to Young America by his grief stricken father and buried on Sunday. Mr. Trawe and his family have the heartfelt sympathy of a host of friends in this, their sad bereavement.

BIRTHDAY.—Nick Schoenborn's 48th birthday was last Tuesday and he invited his many friends to his saloon to partake of a bounteous lunch and some delicious lager. The editor acknowledges an invitation and a good time.

THANKS.
We are under obligation to Mr. L. W. Stratten of Excelsior for a large basket of apples and vegetables.

He sends us a fine lot of Dutchess apples, large and luscious and says that he has 12 trees loaded down with like fruit and aptly adds that they are "pleasant to look at."

He also encloses a fine lot of transcendents and says that he will have 50 bushels to sell. We also find a sample lot of potatoes of the victor variety that are just delicious baked.

There was a lot of other good things in the "basket" upon which we just feasted for a number of days.

Save your Harness by oiling it with Uncle Sam's Harness Oil, which will keep it soft and pliable. This is the best Oil ever made for leather. Sold by all Harness Makers.

Crop Report of 1877.
The report of the commissioner of statistics for the year 1877 is published and we glean the following facts relative to Carver County.

Carver County had 25,547 acres in wheat and harvested 630,157 bushels, an average of 24.60 bushels per acre and being the highest average of any county in the state but one, Polk County.

223,300 bushels of oats and 171,668 bushels of corn were also raised.

A. EISELINE, WACONIA.
The advertisement of this gentleman, appears in this issue of the HERALD. Mr. A. is well known to the people of Carver County, by being a first class dealer, liberal and just, and when we recommend him to our readers we do so with full confidence that a call at his store will justify these remarks. Give him a call and be convinced.

DIED.

If you want to see a grand thing attend the State Fair at St. Paul, commencing next Monday. Half fare tickets on all the railroads.

Now it is Jim Green of the LeSueur Sentinel and Stevens of the Shakopee Courier who are having a warm time over the congressional matter. Be easy on adjectives boys!

PRESIDENT Hayes at the State Fair and Blaine at the Minneapolis exposition are among the modern attraction at Western fairs, and show western enterprise. What next?

It is said that both Pochler and Strit will attend our County Fair in September, and that they will also tell the people what they know about the crops—politically speaking, however.

YELLOW Fever is making fearful ravages in the south. Some of the small cities are almost depopulated. The north are sending down money, nurses and physicians in response to the urgent appeals of the afflicted.

The Senate investigating committee are unearthing some very queer things, to say the least, in regard to the management of the Insane Asylum at St. Peter. The committee have adjourned to meet at St. Paul to further consider the testimony. The testimony appears on inside page in detail.

OUR WHEAT FIELDS.

The land commissioner of the Northern Pacific estimates the surplus wheat product along the line at 1,500,000 bushels, leaving about 1,000,000 for seed and food. Last year the cars on that road carried away only about 350,000 bushels of wheat. The St. Paul & Pacific people estimate the surplus wheat product along their lines for which they must provide transportation this year at 4,000,000 bushels. Last year it was about 750,000. Next year the Northern Pacific people anticipate a wheat export on their lines of some 3,000,000 bushels at least, while the St. Paul & Pacific folks estimate 7,000,000 bushels as the least they will have to transport.

The Red river valley takes the premium on wheat this year. Inquiries at all points along the St. Paul & Pacific extension, from Breckenridge to Fishers Landing, develop a general estimate of from 25 to 25 bushels per acre, mostly No. 1 wheat. At Fishers Landing they claim a large yield and better wheat than anywhere in the State.—[PIONEER-PRESS.]

King Alfonso and His Three Sisters.

Paris Letter from Miss Hooper. Queen Isabella and her son have been exchanging some warmly affectionate letters since the death of the poor little Queen Mercedes. They read very well in the papers. Nevertheless it is a well understood fact that the recent visits of the king's young sister (there are three of them) to Spain was arranged to get them away from their royal mamma. King Alfonso highly disapproved of the style of "carrying on" adopted by Her Most Christian majesty, and so having once got his sisters into Spain he persistently refused to let them return to the maternal abode in Paris. And in so doing he shows himself to be a very sensible young man, for Queen Isabella is not exactly the type of person that one would choose to train up a young lady in the way that she should go. These royal damsels are not at all pretty, being thin and exceedingly sallow, and their mother used to delight in dressing them in pale blues and greens, which certainly did not make them look any better.

What is the use of tearing passion to tatters over Rarus, Blaine and Hayes. The first named is a bigger card than the two latter combined, and it is conceded that he will appear at both fairs.—Globe.

Editor Chaska Herald.

We notice an article in the independent? journal published in your neighboring hamlet reflecting upon the management of the St. Paul fair in inviting the President to be present, and giving vent to some democratic spleen against that gentleman. We are surprised that gentlemen of the Messrs. B's intelligence and education should stoop so low as to make use of such ungentlemanly and unbecoming language. It was to be supposed that gentlemen occupying their stations would be able to deduce arguments in support of their opinions and not be obliged to resort to blackguardism and slanders and fire eating bancombe. It is acknowledged to-day by all intelligent men of both parties that the issue recalled by the Free Press was settled by the electoral commission and the great mass of the people of this country accepted that decision in good faith and though acknowledged crookedness existed in both parties still all investigation has failed to trace even the slightest portion to Mr. Hayes—can as much be said for his opponent?

We are glad to see that the gentlemen are so far converted to Republicanism as to acknowledge the worth and superior statesmanship of Mr. Blaine. But a few years ago when that gentleman was a candidate for Presidential honors if we remember aright Mr. Blaine in the opinion of men of good faith with your subscribers to an independent journal to foist upon them a rabid democratic sheet; independent in nothing except of your promises by which a large number of subscribers were obtained. The "Free Press" (and those to whose sentiments it gives expression) (and we believe they are few) may do as they please. But St. Paul & Minneapolis together with the State of Minnesota in general will welcome Mr. Hayes in such a way as to make the "Free Press" feel its utter insignificance and prove to Mr. Hayes that the great Republican heart of Minnesota is with him in his great and good work.

Lawless and Indefensible.

Red Wing Republican. We observe among the matters which excite condemnatory comment of Doran's investigating committee at St. Peter the purchase of a farm by the trustees of the asylum and the payment for it out of the appropriation for current expenses. Such a transaction is lawless and indefensible. It is putting the discretion of these trustees instead of and above the discretion of the legislature in regard to the use to be made of the people's money. Such acts, whether done by a board of trustees in expending money not appropriated, or by a state auditor in withholding money that has been duly appropriated, are usurpations, illegal and dangerous.

ARMY OFFICERS SENTENCED.

San Antonio, Texas, Telegram. Information has been received at department headquarters of the sentence of Lieut. E. L. Maxwell, United States army to two years' imprisonment in the Leavenworth, Kan., military prison. Maxwell was tried here on the charge of obtaining duplicate sums of money on his pay-roll. He is now in close confinement at Fort Clark. The lieutenant was appointed by President Hayes from Florida. His general conduct has been bad, and the officers of the department seem glad at the prospect of getting rid of him.

CARVER'S SKILL WITH A SHOT-GUN.

Philadelphia Times. Having fired away about two hundred and fifty cartridges with his Winchester rifle at Saenger Park yesterday Dr. Carver took up a shot-gun, and the ball-thrower moved away to a distance of sixteen yards and threw two balls, as quickly as possible, one after the other, from Carver. Two sharp reports, so close together as to sound almost as one shot, followed, and the flying targets fell in pieces. The distance to where the balls were struck was fully forty yards. The feat was repeated a dozen times without a miss.

There were no night we could not read the stars.
The heavens would turn into a blinding glare.
From the best seen through the prison bars.
And rough seas make the haven passing fair.
We cannot measure joys but by their loss.
When blessings fade away, we see them soon.
Our richest clusters grow around the cross.
And in the night-time angles sing to men.
The seed must first be buried deep in earth.
Before the lily opens to the sky.
No "light is seen," and gladness has its birth.
In the dark depths where we can only cry.
"Life out of death," is heaven's unwritten law.
Nay, it is written in a myriad forms.
The victor's palm grows on the heels of war.
And strength and beauty are the fruit of storms.
Come then, my soul, be brave to do and bear.
Thy life is buried that it may be more sacred.
The cross will soon be left, the crown we'll wear.
Nay, we will cast it at our Savior's feet.
And up among the glories never fall.
Sweeter than music of the marriage bell.
Our hands will strike the vibrant harp of gold.
To the glad song, "He does all things well."

The Hole in the Floor.

The life of Seth Grover and Susan, his wife, was to amass property. It had been their aim since their wedded existence, which now counted fifteen years, and was still cherished as the dearest of their hearts. No change was made except it would hasten the desired consummation of this long-nurtured hope, no outlay was ventured upon unless it promised existence in the hearing of money. Not a day's respite had the one from unceasing application to business; not an hour passed that the other was not planning some new way to save dollars and cents.

In such an atmosphere of eager grasp for property, it would be strange had their children escaped the infection. Their little faces brightened at the sight of a penny, not that it would procure sweets, but because it would add another to their store of coins; and the small hand grasped it with as instinctive and keen a pleasure as an aged miser clutches his gold. The oft-repeated parental injunction, "Be very careful of your pennies," fell upon the childish ears, but childish wisdom applied the maxim; the confectioner and fruit-vender were rarely called upon by the young Grovers—their store was taking root.

Mr. and Mrs. Grover had nothing to give away. Poverty was rarely refused; misfortune, in the garb of despondency, met with rebuke instead of sympathy; sorrow, in the person of mourning widows and fatherless children, vainly sought words of consolation and a helping hand; the kindly voice of pity, and the whisperings of charity, were unheard by ears unresponsive to the hints of frugality, the suggestions of economy, or the promptings of prudence. Ah, little do the unfortunate gain from those making haste to be rich.

Revolving, the cheapest of luxuries, Mr. Grover thought too expensive to be encouraged. Books cost money, and newspapers couldn't be had for nothing, even of these wasn't the pleasure of them. When he was rich he would have a library worth showing. His wife had no social intercourse with her friends and neighbors, visits took time, and if she attended parties, she had to be expected to give them. That would not do; so she remained at home, mind and body absorbed in the one paramount idea. Did either feel a lingering desire to listen to the notes of some lute, or to hear the eloquence of a distinguished lecturer, the price of tickets of admission softened disappointment and made the sacrifice seem less.

The Grover children were never permitted to leave the dusty, crowded city for a day in the woods with their companions. The fare back and forth was not to be disregarded; and an excursion of this nature was inevitably attended with more or less torn clothes. Money was always the mother's inducement; a promise of three or four cents each made the little men bend the prettiest kneeling prayer. Ah, nature is a better teacher than a mother whose idol is gold! One opens the heart to kindly influence, makes it more susceptible to genial impressions, quickens brotherly love, and brings the creature nearer the Creator; the other blunts the sensibilities, chokes the springs of benevolence, clogs the aspiring spirit, making it insensible to a loftier sentiment than the love of gain. Are there no other Mrs. Grovers?

None of the family attended church, for poverty was an item, and a minister's tax not an unimportant consideration. If preaching and good example cost nothing, they would have availed themselves of their benefits, but as it was, parents and children were "a law unto themselves." Their living was of the plainest possible kind, and quantity was studied as closely as quality. None of the Grovers were afflicted with gout or dyspepsia if their palates were never regaled by dainty dishes.

Mr. Seth and Mrs. Susan were threatened with a dire calamity, in the shape of a visit from an elderly relative who had troubled them but once since their marriage. A letter from him, requesting his intention to become better acquainted with his nephew and niece. They knew little about him, save that he was a childless old man, rather odd in his ways, and burdened with but a small portion of this world's goods. Yet this much was certain: his stay with them would be attended with great inconvenience, and expensive—and the last reflection was the most annoying of all.

His appearance was not an event of rejoicing on the part of the host and hostess; the respectable-looking old gentleman missed the hearty welcome he had promised himself. They were polite, but not cordial, attentive, but cold and distant, meeting his familiar advances with that indignant reserve so chilling and discouraging. The children had been sent off to bed as soon as tea was over, and the three sat stilly about the cold stove, Mrs. Grover glancing now and then to the clock on the mantelpiece.

"Perhaps your uncle would like to retire," she observed to Mr. Seth.
Conversation had flagged for some minutes; it was hard doing all the talking, and Uncle Abel approved the suggestion, though it was scarcely eleven o'clock.
"I must confess to fatigue," he said.
"I'm not young as I was once, and exertion tires me. I've been accustomed to sleeping in a warm room. If it won't be too much trouble, I'd like a fire kindly lit for me; old blood feels the chilly nights," he added, apologetically.
Mr. Seth said, "Oh, no," and Mr. Susan said, "Certainly not," but any body could see that their thoughts widely diverged from their words.

The fire was made, and the nephew took a small hand-lamp to light Uncle Abel's chamber.
"I should prefer this," said the latter, taking a larger one from the shelf near him, "if you have no objections. It holds more oil, I see, and sometimes, when I restles and can't sleep, I read to induce drowsiness. It won't inconvenience you very much, I hope?"
"Seth said, 'No, indeed!' and Susan, 'Not in the least!'" but mentally their replies were different. Uncle Abel and the largest lamp went up stairs; husband and wife closed the doors for a convivial conference.
"Well!" said the niece.
"What do you think?" said the nephew.
"An assuming old fox!" he exclaimed.
"A confounded bore!" he ejaculated.
"An extra fire, Seth!"
"A lamp to read by, Susan!"
"Meat for dinner!"
"And coffee for breakfast!"
"Will he stay long, do you think?"
"Two or three months, judging from the size and weight of his coat in view."
"A pretty bill of expense, truly! And not a dollar to pay his board!"
"Fuel and light, and what he'll eat and drink will put us back a whole year in our calculations. This comes of having relations! I wish I hadn't one in the world! And to think he's nothing but a great uncle!"
This interesting conversation was prolonged some time; but enough has been given a show of the feelings of Mr. and Mrs. Grover in regard to Uncle Abel.

Morning did not need the measures of the couple, yet the worthy old gentleman was urbane and smiling, seeming not to notice the frigid atmosphere that prevailed. He tried in vain to make the acquaintance of the children, but parental oversight prevented the object in view. It was recollected that they, with a certain class designated as "fools," were said to "tell the truth," and that, in this instance, was not to be spoken.

Uncle Abel's sight was impaired, but he was not so blind that he could not detect dissatisfaction, though in a measure cloaked. His tarry was short at the Grover mansion; in a week he took leave of his nephew and niece, to their unbounded satisfaction.
"We have done well," they said, "to get rid of him so easily. He might have said a month!"
And Uncle Abel was forgotten in the great struggle to make a fortune.

One year afterward, they heard of his decease by means of the following significant letter, which was found among his private papers, and forwarded to them after his death:

"Nephew and Niece:—When a childless old man crosses your threshold, yearning for love and sympathy, and that care which youth should voluntarily accord to old age, treat him not coldly, begrudge him not the food he eats, the fire that warms him, nor the light that enables him to beguile a lonely midnight hour. Light slowly began to creep through the bewildered brains of Mr. and Mrs. Grover, revealing a startling truth in every line of the singular epistle before them. They looked at each other in blank dismay in the consciousness that their hypocrisy and littleness had been exposed. A place had been cut in the floor for the admission of a pipe from the stove in the room below. Being early in the season, this pipe had not been adjusted for the winter, and the space was consequently open.
Uncle Abel occupied that chamber and had no difficulty in overhearing every note of some lute, or to hear the eloquence of a distinguished lecturer, the price of tickets of admission softened disappointment and made the sacrifice seem less.

The entrails of cattle are now manufactured into corn and flat belting, and other material where extraordinary strength is required.
Scientific nobodies are constantly talking of the manner in which lightning will strike and be conducted. A little common sense would save a deal of type and paper.

A wise man in Elmira has found out what the pear blight is—a "black bug." Everybody has suspected for a long time that the discoverer would hail from the West.
To take out Scotch.—If a shirt-bosom, or any other article, has been scorched in ironing, lay it where bright sunshine will fall directly on it. It will take it entirely out.

The corners in grain which have been so conningly arranged in the larger Western cities have nearly all come to grief. How sorry our agricultural community must feel!

Every one that owns an orchard, or even a single tree, should now be looking after the borers, to see that their trees are not destroyed. If taken early, it is not a very hard task to destroy the pests by the use of pocket-knives.

The residents of "Boston" have at last discovered that live stock can be exported to Great Britain, and are quite jubilant over their discovery. That is the result of reading none but provincial papers.

Old friend Harder is still pushing his thrashing-machine to the front. It is to be hoped that on the coming State fair he will establish his headquarters as far as possible from the rest of the world.

The peppermint crop, from reports, promises to be an unusually large one. The plant is large and thriving, and the indications now are the distilling will begin at least two weeks earlier this year than usual.

Current Jilly.—Put the curants in a large jar, and set in a kettle of hot water over the fire till the curants are thoroughly heated; squeeze the curants through a cloth or one of the machines for squeezing fruit; measure the juice, and to every pint allow a pound of sugar; put the juice into the preserving-kettle, and spread the sugar on pans and set in the oven; it must be stirred occasionally to prevent it from burning; let the sugar get very hot, and when the juice has boiled fifteen minutes stir in the sugar, and as soon as it comes to a boil again take it off the fire and put it in the jars; lay thin paper dipped in brandy over the jelly when it is cold, and paste a thick paper over the jars. Jelly made in this way is clear, firm, and keeps very well. Any kind of jelly may be made in this way.

Strawberry Cream.—Pick the calyxes from two quarts of strawberries; crush them in an earthen dish with one-half pound of sugar; put through a sieve a mix with a pint of whipped cream, adding one ounce and a half of dissolved gelatin; pour into a mould and when firm turn out and serve.

Fruit at Home.—Few people seem to understand the full value of home-made fruit. It can be gathered fresh from the home grounds. But as we advance in knowledge of horticulture, more and more we are coming to understand the hygienic properties of small fruits at our hand. You commence with strawberries; they continue about a month. You pick, perhaps, from six to ten quarts a day. You have them on your table as a dessert if you please, at noon, and your tea table is loaded with them at evening, and you want little else but bread and butter.

Your family consumes, in one way or another, about eight quarts a day, and while they last, no medicine for bodily ailments are required, as a quart of strawberries daily will generally dispense with ordinary diseases not settled permanently in the system. After strawberries, raspberries come and continue about three weeks; then we have blackberries, where the climate is not too cold to have cultivated in the open ground. And at the same time, hundreds of dollars can be saved in the supply of table.

Sweet Potato Pies.—Scrape clean two good sized sweet potatoes; boil. When tender, rub through the colander, and add yolks of three eggs; stir with a pint of sweet milk into the potato; add a small teaspoon of sugar, a pinch of salt, and flavor with a little fresh lemon or extract. Bake in pumpkin shells, or in a tin, for a meringue top of two eggs and powdered sugar. Brown a few minutes in the oven.

For washing silver put a teaspoonful of barstern into the suds in which the silver is washed; have the water lukewarm, wash quickly, using a small brush; rinse in hot water and dry with a clean linen towel; then rub dry with a chamois skin. Washed in this manner silver becomes very brilliant, and requires no polishing with any of the powders or whiting usually employed, and the silver does not wear out.

Found to cure swollen feet and ankles, is to take a quart of water (which can be found in almost any grassy spot, or in our public parks); with them by putting separately between the hands; cover the swollen parts with them, and keep in place by wrapping the foot in a towel on going to bed at night, or keep them on during the day if not obliged to be upon the feet. A cure will be speedily effected.

Planned Cakes.—Warm a quart of milk with two ounces of butter until thoroughly melted; dissolve a teaspoonful of soda in a little cold cream, and add a little warm milk. Sift two pounds of flour, and stir into the milk to make a thick smooth batter. Beat seven eggs until very thick and light, and add gradually to the batter, beating it hard while pouring the eggs in. Bake on a hot griddle well greased.

Duchess Potatoes.—Mash one quart of hot boiled potatoes through a fine colander with a potato-masher; mix with them one ounce of butter, one ounce of cream, salt, half a tablespoonful of white pepper, a pinch of grated nutmeg, and the yolks of two raw eggs; pour the potato out on a plate, and then form it with a knife into long cakes two inches thick; lay them on a buttered tin, brush them over the top with an egg beaten up with a teaspoonful of cold water, and color them golden brown in a moderate oven.

A writer in the Practical Farmer says: "I have practiced stacking fodder for twenty years—never had any spoil, and after trying various ways think it decidedly preferable to all other modes, because first, none but the butts, the worthless portion, are exposed to the bleaching rains of winter, and second, because a larger quantity can be placed close by the feeding place than by any other way. I put usually fifty shocks of 100 hills each in a stack. A few sticks are placed on the ground to raise the center of the stack. The center sticks are kept up sufficient to shed rain from the butts throughout the stack. The stack must be made of such bundles only as to allow the tops of bundles to lap, and to slip over the center, single row of bundles, and the stack should be in form similar to an ordinary 100-hill stack, and be well tied with a band. I feed only four head of cattle on such a stack, and never had any damaged by rain; only one course appears to get damp, and the cattle prefer it in that condition. If a snow storm occurs, or a heavy rain, I immediately remove one entire row, and set on end all not fed. I feed in the ordinary box manger, always in the stable, being particular to have the butts of bundles placed in the bottom of the manger. None is ever wasted—not even a husk. The stalks remaining are thrown

Planned Cakes.—Warm a quart of milk with two ounces of butter until thoroughly melted; dissolve a teaspoonful of soda in a little cold cream, and add a little warm milk. Sift two pounds of flour, and stir into the milk to make a thick smooth batter. Beat seven eggs until very thick and light, and add gradually to the batter, beating it hard while pouring the eggs in. Bake on a hot griddle well greased.

Duchess Potatoes.—Mash one quart of hot boiled potatoes through a fine colander with a potato-masher; mix with them one ounce of butter, one ounce of cream, salt, half a tablespoonful of white pepper, a pinch of grated nutmeg, and the yolks of two raw eggs; pour the potato out on a plate, and then form it with a knife into long cakes two inches thick; lay them on a buttered tin, brush them over the top with an egg beaten up with a teaspoonful of cold water, and color them golden brown in a moderate oven.

A writer in the Practical Farmer says: "I have practiced stacking fodder for twenty years—never had any spoil, and after trying various ways think it decidedly preferable to all other modes, because first, none but the butts, the worthless portion, are exposed to the bleaching rains of winter, and second, because a larger quantity can be placed close by the feeding place than by any other way. I put usually fifty shocks of 100 hills each in a stack. A few sticks are placed on the ground to raise the center of the stack. The center sticks are kept up sufficient to shed rain from the butts throughout the stack. The stack must be made of such bundles only as to allow the tops of bundles to lap, and to slip over the center, single row of bundles, and the stack should be in form similar to an ordinary 100-hill stack, and be well tied with a band. I feed only four head of cattle on such a stack, and never had any damaged by rain; only one course appears to get damp, and the cattle prefer it in that condition. If a snow storm occurs, or a heavy rain, I immediately remove one entire row, and set on end all not fed. I feed in the ordinary box manger, always in the stable, being particular to have the butts of bundles placed in the bottom of the manger. None is ever wasted—not even a husk. The stalks remaining are thrown

Current Jilly.—Put the curants in a large jar, and set in a kettle of hot water over the fire till the curants are thoroughly heated; squeeze the curants through a cloth or one of the machines for squeezing fruit; measure the juice, and to every pint allow a pound of sugar; put the juice into the preserving-kettle, and spread the sugar on pans and set in the oven; it must be stirred occasionally to prevent it from burning; let the sugar get very hot, and when the juice has boiled fifteen minutes stir in the sugar, and as soon as it comes to a boil again take it off the fire and put it in the jars; lay thin paper dipped in brandy over the jelly when it is cold, and paste a thick paper over the jars. Jelly made in this way is clear, firm, and keeps very well. Any kind of jelly may be made in this way.

Strawberry Cream.—Pick the calyxes from two quarts of strawberries; crush them in an earthen dish with one-half pound of sugar; put through a sieve a mix with a pint of whipped cream, adding one ounce and a half of dissolved gelatin; pour into a mould and when firm turn out and serve.

Fruit at Home.—Few people seem to understand the full value of home-made fruit. It can be gathered fresh from the home grounds. But as we advance in knowledge of horticulture, more and more we are coming to understand the hygienic properties of small fruits at our hand. You commence with strawberries; they continue about a month. You pick, perhaps, from six to ten quarts a day. You have them on your table as a dessert if you please, at noon, and your tea table is loaded with them at evening, and you want little else but bread and butter.

Your family consumes, in one way or another, about eight quarts a day, and while they last, no medicine for bodily ailments are required, as a quart of strawberries daily will generally dispense with ordinary diseases not settled permanently in the system. After strawberries, raspberries come and continue about three weeks; then we have blackberries, where the climate is not too cold to have cultivated in the open ground. And at the same time, hundreds of dollars can be saved in the supply of table.
